Description: JIM MURRAY'S WHISKY BIBLE -95 POINTS - 'Sizzling, jabbing grain versus heavyweight young peated malts: some match; the outcome on the palate is explosive: rampaging peaty malts put firmly in their place by crisp grain with a unique mouthfeel style, different even to Isle of Skye; softer, spent, sweet malts allow the more bitter cocoa-cruled grains to make a stand; a blend that has to be tasted to be believed: it is young yet enormous, raw yet sophisticated, wild, brazen and beautiful. Other Info: Black Bottle is a blended Scotch Whisky bottled by Burn Stewart Distillers. The brand was introduced in 1879 and was first produced by Aberdeen tea blenders Charles, David and Gordon Graham. After many years of decline prompted by a distillery fire and subsequent business sale, Black Bottle was revitalised in 1990 with a new blend using Islay single malt whiskies.
