OXFORD: Law firm Manches has made two new appointments. Rich Eldridge (left) joins as head of finance, while Zoe Pepper has been taken on as an associate. Mr Eldridge was previously at Blake Laphorn while Ms Pepper worked at Charles Russell in Oxford. Mr Eldridge said: "Manches has one of the strongest corporate teams in the Thames Valley and I am looking forward to growing the finance practice".

STANDLAKE: The Oxford Wine Company has been named as Independent Wine Retailer of the Year at the Drinks Retailing Awards.

Ted Sandbach, owner and managing director of the business, which has a shop in Oxford and its headquarters in Standlake, said: "We are thrilled to have won our second major award in the space of a year, especially one recognised from within the trade itself."

OXFORD: Angie Parmenter and Jeremy Turner have been appointed to run the new St Clements office of estate agents Penny & Sinclair.

Mr Turner joins as associate director and head of office, bringing with him a wealth of experience and industry knowledge, while Ms Parmenter becomes senior sales negotiator.

Director James Penny and Angie, as respected characters, with prominent profiles, will bring a substantial asset to our practice."
