Glenfarclas 15 Year Old, Distillery Bottled

£65.00

Vintage:

Bottle Size: 70cl

Alcohol %: 43%

Country: Scotland

Description: Nose: Intense, powerful sherry. Cream sherry, certainly Pedro Ximenez? almost a touch of peppermint? An almost rancio quality to this. Smells older than 15. Palate: Raisins, more sherry, orange peel, walnuts, dates. Finish: Incredibly long, complex, more of the Walnuts again. Overall: Water draws out sweetness. This is Christmas cake, not whisky. Simply astonishing.

Other Info:

Glenfarclas was bought in 1865 for £511.19S by John Grant. To this day, Glenfarclas has remained independent and is now belongs to the 6th generation of Grants from Glenfarclas. The distillery can be found at the foot of Ben Rinnes, an 840 meter high mountain. Glenfarclas has 6 traditional direct-fired copper pot stills, which are considered to be the biggest on the Speyside. The cloudy "wash" is turned into crystal clear spirit through a double distillation process from a larger "wash still" to the smaller "spirit still." Glenfarclas is known for using ex-sherry barrels for the ageing of their malt. They do however also use plain oak casks which previously aged bourbon. Barrles lie bormant for at least 8 years in on-site dunnage warehouses for a minimum of 8 years loosing an average of 0.4% abv per year known as the "Angles Share."

The range boasts many different aged malts. Among the core range are the 10, 15, 21, 25 and 30 year olds with a very recent 40 year old release. Glenfarclas also has vintage casks dating back as far as 1953 which they bottle and sell under their "Family Cask" range.
