'This is all Chardonnay, worth mentioning for a white Nuits-St-Georges as many contain Pinot Blanc. It is grown in free-standing bush vines, which give low yields, 16hl/ha in 2019. Pale lime and lemon, rather an elegant version, despite the thickness of texture from the low yield. This is a wine, which will surprise people and it doesn't conform to the usual rules. A little below 14% so not for drinking casually. Energy comes from the opposite slopes of the dip, or creux, which forms this vineyard,

officially called Les Crots.' - Jasper Morris, Inside Burgundy
